OF THE UNIVERSITY OF SASKATCHEWAN
October 7 and 8, 2019
Peter MacKinnon Building, Emmett Hall Board Room 238

Present: Shelley Brown (chair), Allan Adam, Lee Ahenakew, Joy Crawford, Grant Devine, Grant Isaac, Jay Kalra, Ritu Malhotra, Regan Ratt-Misponas, Roy Romanow, Peter Stoicheff

Regrets: Grant Isaac

Resource Officers: Beth Bilson (secretary), Cheryl Carver, Karen Chad, Greg Fowler, Debra Pozega Osburn, Tony Vannelli

1. Call to Order and Chair’s Remarks

The chair called the meeting to order at 8:31 a.m. on October 7. She acknowledged that the meeting was taking place on the territory of Treaty Six and the homeland of the Métis. She alluded to the opening of the Jim Pattison Children’s Hospital, and the celebration of the signage for the Prince Albert Campus. She advised Board members that they would be able to participate in a tour of the nearly completed A-Wing of the Health Sciences Building later in the day. Finally, she pointed out that the portrait of former chancellor Roy Romanow had been mounted on the wall.

2. Governors’ Conflicts of Interest

No conflicts of interest identified.

3. President’s Opening Statement

President Stoicheff also spoke of the portrait of former chancellor Romanow, which was unveiled at an event in June. He said that the artist, Leslie Watts, had spoken of the importance of the portrait to her because she became aware of Chancellor Romanow’s important contributions to the Canadian health care system at a time when she was receiving treatment for cancer.

He spoke to the success of the August summit of senior leadership. The theme of the summit was leadership, in particular the characteristics of the kind of leadership necessary to support the execution of the University Plan and the plan for a comprehensive campaign.

The president circulated copies of an editorial from the Star-Phoenix marking the twentieth anniversary of groundbreaking for the Canadian Light Source.
President Stoicheff described the event held in Prince Albert to mark the signage for the Prince Albert Campus which will open in the fall of 2020. He said there is considerable excitement in Prince Albert about this project, which will revitalize the downtown area and be a prominent symbol of the university’s commitment to that city.

One of the offshoots from the MOU with the City of Saskatoon was the recent announcement of Research Junction, an exciting initiative that will offer funding for research projects bringing together researchers from the university and city representatives to study an issue important to the city. This initiative is an example of how the university can be “the university the world needs.”

The university has achieved record enrolment for the fifth year in a row, with an increase of over 1%. This university has been in the fortunate position of being able to recruit students, including international students, on a strategic basis.

The university has been accepted as one of the institutions participating in the Dimensions program the Canadian equivalent of the Athena Swan program in the UK, which articulates standards and objectives for increasing diversity among faculty and the recipients of tri-council funding. The university’s involvement in the Dimensions program stands to put it on the map with the federal government.

Two new research chairs have been created, the Canadian Institutes of Health Research Indigenous Research Chair in Nursing and a chair in beef research in the Western College of Veterinary Medicine. The president also mentioned the creation of the Nutrien Chair in Clinical Cancer Research, made possible because of the unique network of medical imaging infrastructure on campus.

The College of Agriculture and Bioresources has harvested its first crop of ceremonial tobacco, grown on the roof of the building. The college met with Elders to determine what type of tobacco should be grown. The intention is to provide seeds and plants to Indigenous communities.

Irena Creed, incoming associate vice-president research, has become a member of the Royal Society of Canada, and John Pomeroy of the Global Institute for Water Security has been awarded the Miroslaw Malonowsky Medal of the Royal Society. An alumni event is being planned to recognize the success of all of the university’s Royal Society members.

The Board adjourned at 9:10 a.m. to accommodate meetings of the standing committees.

The Board reconvened at 8:35 a.m. on October 8.
